No Escape.

Boracic acid in the soup,
Wood alcohol in wine,
Catsup dyed a lurid hue
By using aniline;
The old ground hulls of cocoanuts
Served to us as spices;
I reckon crisp and frigid glass
Is dished out with the ices.
The milk—the kind the old cow gives
'Way down at Cloverside—
It's one-third milk and water, and—
And then—formaldehyde.
The syrup's bleached by using tin,
And honey's just glucose,
And what the fancy butter is
The goodness gracious knows!
The olive oil's of cottonseed,
There's alum in the bread;
It's really a surprise to me
The whole durned race ain't dead.
Meantime all the germs and things
Are buzzing fit to kill:
If the food you eat don't git you,
The goldarned microbes will.

A Short Strike.

A premature and unofficial strike occurred on some parts of the Public Service Corporation's street railway system Thursday afternoon and night, but an agreement was made between the company and representatives of the employees' union at a late hour Thursday night and work was resumed by the strikers on Friday morning. The Newark and Paterson line, the Bloomfield avenue line and the Clifton avenue line were the parts of the company's Newark system affected by the strike.

Early Thursday afternoon some of the employees began to leave the cars on the Bloomfield avenue line, and by seven o'clock in the evening the service on the avenue was badly crippled and the Verona and Caldwell divisions completely tied up. Inspectors and other official employees took the strikers' places and cars were run at varying intervals between here and Newark. Many people employed in factories along Bloomfield avenue, who depend on the trolley cars for transportation, had to walk home.

The Orange and Passaic Valley line was not affected by the strike and cars were run regularly on that line.

Notwithstanding the strike was an unofficial one, and the men who had went out had done so on their own responsibility, the strike had not been under way over an hour or so when indications of serious trouble were manifested, and policemen were put on the cars to protect the motormen and conductors who had not turned out. At the Bloomfield avenue car yard the strikers tried to induce those who continued at work to leave the cars and those who refused were called scabs.

The company called on the local police department for protection to its men and property, and requested that policemen board the cars at the city line and conduct them to the borough line It was stated that a disorderly crowd was trying to make trouble at the city line. There is no doubt if an extensive strike goes into effect on the trolley lines, the city line will be a dangerous point. Policeman Shorter was sent there Thursday evening by Chief Collins to investigate the situation at the city line. The officer found a crowd there that was evidently disposed to help make trouble, but the situation was not serious enough to warrant police interference.

The trolley employees of the Public Service Corporation's system, which includes all the important trolley lines in the northern part of this State, are organized as a branch of the National Amalgamated Association of Electrical Street Railway Employees. William Mang of Detroit, Mich., is president of the National organization and an official strike can only be made by his order. He has a personal representative here in Newark now investigating the causes of the trouble between the Public Service Corporation and its employees.

It is several days since the trolley employees made a demand on the company for a redress of grievances. Among the demands of the men is one for a wage rate of twenty-two cents per hour and a shorter working day. Representatives of the employees have been in conference several times during the week with President McCarter of the Public Service Corporation. The terms of the settlement made Thursday night were not made public, but the impression prevails that it was but a temporary compromise.
